During the past two years NPA-TV has improved the public access television studio located at Norwood High School by purchasing new digital video equipment. The overall look of programming and bulletin board messages on the educational access channel has been improved by the installation of digital equipment. Public Access users and television students have benefited from this partnership because of the increased computer workstations, additional digital cameras and state of the art digital equipment that allows students to produce broadcast quality programs. The cable subscribers of Norwood benefit from this relationship because the quality and quantity of programming on the educational access channel has improved and will continue to advance with technology. To learn more about Public Access call NPA-TV at (781) 551-0338 or visit www.npatv.org for current schedules and more information.
